Students and staff at Cranbrook Primary School now have plenty of room to cook and prepare food thanks to the local men's shed's efforts in building a new kitchen facility.

Peter Slater and the team at the Community Men's Shed have been working for months on the new facility.

"There was nothing here before; there was only one tiny sink," he said.

"We used benches from kitchens that didn't eventuate, used recycled sinks and plumbers donated their time fitting the pipes."

Cranbrook Primary School's Parents and Citizens Council contributed $1000 to the project, and Bunnings donated a $100 voucher which was used to purchase taps.

P & C member Tina Pope said the new kitchen complemented the school's Stephanie Alexander Kitchen Garden program, which gave students in Years 4, 5, 6 and 7 hands-on food education.

"I think it's fantastic what they have done for the school; the kids come home after school and they want to help out in the kitchen," she said.

In further good news, Community Men's Sheds in Cranbrook and Kojonup were successful in a round of funding through the Federal Government's National Shed Development Programme. Kojonup Community Men's Shed was allocated $2200 to purchase woodwork and metalwork tools.

Cranbrook's Men's Shed received $5500 to replace its roof.
